COURSE OBJECTIVES

What is the impact of gender inequality on war and peace? What are the ways in which war affects women differently from men? What roles have women played during war, peace negotiations, post-conflict reconciliation, and post-conflict governance and reconstruction?

This course surveys the broad landscape of women, war, and peace. The emphasis will be on the role gender, gender hierarchies, and gender inequality play in the prevalence of conflict and the prospects for peace. Women’s experiences and roles during conflict and war have traditionally not received much attention. The course brings women’s experiences and roles into focus, but does not ignore that impact of gender on conflict and peace ultimately demands a rebalancing of the roles of both men and women.

This course introduces students to works by both scholars and practitioners, and includes both theoretical and policy oriented reading materials. The course aims to deepen students’ critical thinking and problem solving skills. One, students will encounter different viewpoints in the readings and during class sessions. Two, students will consider how peace might be advanced in a specific context by designing a project or program aimed at building and/or consolidating peace.

STUDENT RESPONSIBILITIES AND EVALUATION

It is essential for productive class discussion that you come to class prepared. It is also essential that you are respectful of everyone else’s opinions -- including those of your fellow students, the authors of the material you read, and your instructor. Be open to new and different ideas and points of view. Ask for clarification. Work to understand different perspectives and allow them to enrich your own thinking. Form your own opinions and be able to explain and defend your positions.

To ensure the success of your learning experience, you are expected to: complete reading assignments on time, attend and participate in class, and to take the examinations at the scheduled time. All written assignments are due as specified in the syllabus, on the day noted in this syllabus. Please be aware that the five required summaries of the readings are not noted in the course outline. It is your responsibility to keep track of the completion of the requisite number of summaries.

As a courtesy to your fellow students (and the instructor), plan to arrive on time, shut off (or mute) cell phones and other electronic devices, and remain in the classroom for the duration of the class. You may take notes on a laptop or tablet if you wish, but may not use it for other tasks during class. Taking notes with pen and paper is preferred – it is more conducive to active class participation.
Your attendance and participation will be monitored and factored into your grade. If you are absent because of university-sponsored and/or educational activities, provide the instructor with written confirmation of the reason for your absence. Notify the instructor at your earliest convenience if the need to be absent due to observance of religious holidays – especially if assignments are due or an exam is scheduled for those days. On the other hand, do avoid scheduling doctor’s appointments or any other appointments during class time.

If you cannot meet a deadline or cannot be present for an exam, you should contact the instructor prior to the date the work is due or the exam is to take place. E-mail and office phone for the instructor are listed at the top of this syllabus. E-mail is the preferred option for contacting me. If you leave a phone message, be aware it may not reach me as quickly as an e-mail message, and please include your name and a number where you can be reached.

Unless you have reached prior agreement with the instructor, the following rules apply: No late assignments will be accepted. No make-up examinations will be given.

The course grade will be determined on basis of the following, with the various assignments weighted as indicated:

- Critical Evaluation of Literature (complete minimum of 5) 25
- Research Project
  - Part 1: Research Question and Annotated Bibliography 10
  - Part 2: Completed Research Paper 25
  - Presentation 10
- Exam 20
- Class Attendance and Participation 10

Course grades are determined on the basis of your final cumulative average, using the above weights. The maximum score in the final cumulative average is 100 and a standard scale is employed (i.e. A≥90, B≥80, C≥70, D≥60, F<60). Fractions of .5 and higher are rounded up and small modifications are made when warranted by the performance of the class as a whole – although excellent classes are not penalized with a more stringent scale than the standard one!

ASSIGNMENTS AND LEARNING

The assignments for the course will together add up to your grade for the course. However, they are also targeted to achieve specific learning outcomes. Here’s what each type of assignment is designed to do:

The reading list below includes materials from the four books that students are expected to purchase, but also a number journal articles. Reading helps to acquire information and serve as preparation for the class discussions.

Students are expected to locate and download the journal articles from the UNT library website. Students must use the library website to obtain free access to these materials. The ability to find these materials through the library website is a prerequisite for finding additional materials for the research-based project for the course.

The critical evaluation of the literature short papers are designed to help you focus on the key points made by the author(s), to provide practice in rephrasing those points in your own words, and to critically evaluate the material. Additional aims of this assignment are: 1. Preparation for class discussion; 2. Practice in consolidating information from multiple sources and reconciling contradictions between sources (contrast and compare); 3. Preparation for the course examination.

The research project allows you to build on the extant literature and write your own original research paper. Ideally, this paper will be a first draft for a paper you present at a professional conference and revise for submission to a journal.

The presentation is an opportunity to practice your public speaking skills and to share your ideas with your fellow students. It’s also an opportunity to receive valuable feedback that can lead to improvements in the final paper.

The examination encourages students to attain command of the material presented in the course beyond memorization. The examination will use an essay format and will go beyond testing your knowledge of course concepts, theories, and facts. The examinations will ask you to apply and/or critically evaluate theories and concepts in light of historical and contemporary facts.

Class attendance and participation is essential and is rewarded. You will earn a small proportion of your grade just by showing up and participating in class discussions.

CRITICAL EVALUATION OF LITERATURE

Students complete a series of five critical evaluations of the readings. Each summary will address all of the readings for one topic. These papers will restate in your own words the key points made by the author(s), and evaluate the theory and methods (if relevant) employed. Use these papers to reflect on the contributions and limitations of the existing literature.

These papers should be about 3-5 double-spaced pages in length (12pt font, 1 inch margins). At the top of the page, include your name. Also include the topic (number and description, as given on the syllabus) that the paper addresses.

Each paper is due at the start of class on the day that we begin that section. E.g., if you complete the paper for topic III (Women, Gender, & Feminist Theory), you must submit that paper at the start of class on August 31. No late papers will be accepted.

Students may choose the five topics for which they’ll complete the summaries, but are encouraged to space the work across the semester. Students may turn in additional summaries. If additional papers are turned in, the five highest scores will be used to calculate the grade for this portion of the course grade.

RESEARCH PAPER

The research paper assignment is intended as an opportunity to write your own original research paper. Ideally, you will produce the first draft for a paper you will present at a professional conference and/or revise for submission to a journal.

The assignment will be completed in two installments, but you are encouraged to consult with the instructor on a frequent basis to stay on track and make progress towards an excellent paper.

Part 1: Research Question and Annotated Bibliography

- Schedule a consultation with the instructor to discuss your research interests and determine a (preliminary) research question.
- Research the existing literature related to your research question. Create an annotated bibliography or rough draft for a literature review by the due date for this initial portion of the paper.
- Cite your sources. Make careful distinctions between your own assessments, and ideas and assessments from your sources. If you summarize or paraphrase material from a source, include a source citation (author’s last name and year of publication). If you quote the exact words from a source (i.e. use a phrase, sentence fragment, full sentence, or longer passage), then include the author’s last name, year of publication, and page(s) on which the quote can be found.

Part 2: Completed Research Paper

- This will be the completed draft, as agreed upon in consultations with the instructor.

Format and length:

- The final paper should be about 8,000 words long. This is the maximum length for manuscripts submitted to many field-specific academic journals. There are journals who require less (6,000 words) and those who allow more (up to 12,000 or even 14,000 words), but 8,000 seems a good general guideline.
- For the course, use the template for the title page that is included at the end of this syllabus. The title page must include the paper’s title, your name, the course for which the paper was written, and the semester you wrote it. The title page must also include the signed and dated statement (in the box) that pledges the paper is your own, original work. Papers that do not include this statement and your signature will be considered to not have been submitted and will not be graded!

- Use subheadings, as is conventional for academic journal articles. You may wish to consult specific publications and write with a specific publication in mind.
- Use an author-date, in-text citation style, such as APA or APSA. UNT’s Writing Lab has an online resource for APA style at http://ltc.unt.edu/labs/resources/online-style-guides. Another (very detailed) resource on APA style that’s readily accessible is online: http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/560/01/ (There is no need to provide an abstract, but the title page format example may be useful.)
- Start your bibliography on a new page. Bibliographies should contain only those works actually cited or referenced in the text. In this case, your bibliography is likely to consist only of the two articles reviewed in the paper.
- Number your pages.
- Edit your paper. Check for any spelling or grammatical errors. Do not rely exclusively on your software’s built-in spellchecker to catch your errors!
- Double space the text. Use an acceptable font size, such as Times New Roman 12 pt. Use reasonable margins, such as 1 inch on all sides.
- Staple your paper in the upper left-hand corner. No folders, plastic covers, paper clips, etc.
- Turn in both a paper and an electronic version in MS Word. E-mail the electronic version to me at marijke.breuning@unt.edu and make sure the file name is in the following format:
  o Part 1: lastname-Part1
  o Part 2: lastname-Final

PROJECT PRESENTATION

Students present their research during the final weeks of the semester. These presentations focus on the completed the paper and should be structured as if you are preparing a conference presentation. The instructor and the student audience will provide feedback on the presentation.

STATEMENT OF ADA COMPLIANCE
The University of North Texas makes reasonable academic accommodation for students with disabilities. Students seeking accommodation must first register with the Office of Disability Accommodation (ODA) to verify their eligibility. If a disability is verified, the ODA will provide you with an accommodation letter to be delivered to faculty to begin a private discussion regarding your specific needs in a course. You may request accommodations at any time, however, ODA notices of accommodation should be provided as early as possible in the semester to avoid any delay in implementation.

Note that students must obtain a new letter of accommodation for every semester and must meet with each faculty member prior to implementation in each class. For additional information see the Office of Disability Accommodation website at http://www.unt.edu/oda. You may also contact them by phone at 940-565-4323.

POLICY ON CHEATING AND PLAGIARISM
The UNT Code of Student Conduct and Discipline defines cheating and plagiarism as the use of unauthorized books, notes, or otherwise securing help in a test; copying others' tests, assignments, reports, or term papers; representing the work of another as one's own; collaborating without authority with another student during an examination or in preparing academic work; or otherwise practicing scholastic dishonesty.

Normally, the minimum penalty for cheating or plagiarism is a grade of "F" in the course. In the case of graduate departmental exams, the minimum penalty shall be failure of all fields of the exam. Determination of cheating or plagiarism shall be made by the instructor in the course, or by the field faculty in the case of departmental exams.

Cases of cheating or plagiarism on graduate departmental exams, theses, or dissertations shall automatically be referred to the departmental Graduate Studies Committee. Cases of cheating or plagiarism in ordinary coursework may, at the discretion of the instructor, be referred to the Undergraduate Studies Committee in the case of undergraduate students, or the Graduate Studies Committee in the case of graduate students. These committees, acting as agents of the department Chair, shall impose further penalties, or recommend further penalties to the Dean of Students, if they determine that the case warrants it. In all cases, the Dean of Students shall be informed in writing of the case.

Students may appeal any decision under this policy by following the procedures laid down in the UNT Code of Student Conduct and Discipline.

POLICY ON ACADEMIC INTEGRITY
The Political Science Department adheres to and enforces UNT’s policy on academic integrity (cheating, plagiarism, forgery, fabrication, facilitating academic dishonesty and sabotage). Students in this class should review the policy (UNT Policy Manual Section 18.1.16), which may be located at http://policy.unt.edu/sites/default/files/untpolicy/pdf/7-Student_Affairs-Academic_Integrity.pdf. Violations of academic integrity in this course will be addressed in compliance with the penalties and procedures laid out in this policy. Students may appeal any decision under this policy by following the procedures laid down in the UNT Policy Manual Section 18.1.16 “Student Standards of Academic Integrity.”

University of North Texas -- Department of Political Science

ACCEPTABLE STUDENT BEHAVIOR

Student behavior that interferes with an instructor’s ability to conduct a class or other students' opportunity to learn is unacceptable and disruptive and will not be tolerated in any instructional forum at UNT. Students engaging in unacceptable behavior will be directed to leave the classroom and the instructor may refer the student to the Center for Student Rights and Responsibilities to consider whether the student's conduct violated the Code of Student Conduct. The university's expectations for student conduct apply to all instructional forums, including university and electronic classroom, labs, discussion groups, field trips, etc. The Code of Student Conduct can be found at https://deanofstudents.unt.edu/conduct.
