Course Description

The aim of this core seminar is to introduce students to the theoretical and empirical perspectives and experiences that inform current programs and policies in the field of gender and development. The course will examine the transformations in the lives of women and men in the developing world through development and incorporation into global national and local social, economic and political systems from a multidisciplinary social science perspective. The course concentrates on the structure and process of gender relations (i.e. between and among women and men). In examining "gender politics", the course will explore the politicization of gender relations at various levels of society, from domestic settings to national contexts to the international sphere. Therefore, the course will review the key theoretical and methodological debates in the study of gendered social relations and institutions and investigate how these relations and institutions are being transformed at the different levels of social life.

Course Objectives

Having taken this course, the student should be able:

1. Understand the origins and evolution of theory and research in gender and development.
2. Understand how theory and research influence development policy and practice and vice versa.
3. Have a basic grasp of a range of gender and development problems and issues at both the macro and micro levels and of the dilemmas faced by development planners and “beneficiaries”.
4. Be able to recognize and critique the ideological position and vested interests implicit in particular theories, policies and empirical research.
5. Understand the opportunities and obstacles facing social scientists concerned with gender and development theory and practice.
Finally, this course has a somewhat heavy reading load. Many of the readings are also difficult. Recognize this from the start and budget your time wisely. Do not give up because you do not understand. Try to figure out exactly where and why the author is confusing and bring this to class. Class participation is essential in a graduate seminar. Students are expected not only to be present but also to be prepared to discuss the readings. Always come to class with questions and comments. Every student is expected to come prepared with at least one question or comment.

Keep in mind with respect to class discussion and the critical memos: Contributing to a discussion means constructively engaging in a collective exchange—i.e. not dominating the discussion or merely stating your position without defending it. It will be very helpful to the class as a group if you speak as clearly and as fully as you can about what you are finding difficult to understand so that we can all understand the issues better; you will lose neither points nor “status” for this.

Course Requirements

1. Attendance and Class Participation. I will base 20% of your final grade on attendance and class participation. You are expected to come to class prepared to discuss the readings for each week. The more you keep up with the readings, the more you will learn in class. Also each session two students (in a rotating schedule) will be responsible for directing class and preparing the readings to be covered for that day. The discussion leaders will facilitate the class discussion by presenting to the class 3-4 questions that require us to synthesize or critique the material in the readings in order to initiate conversation. The discussion leaders should WORK TOGETHER to make their questions/responses as interesting as possible in order to engage us into conversation about the material. In other words, I DO NOT WANT the discussion leaders to merely divide the readings and only give summaries of them to the class. You will receive a lower grade if you do this. The discussion leaders together must e-mail their questions to the class (use Blackboard) by 11:00 a.m. on the day they lead the discussion. For this system to work, questions must be in on time; everyone should make all efforts to review the questions prior to our meeting.

Attendance records will be kept at the beginning of each class to note attendances and absences. Please come to class on time. There will be one 10 minute break during the class session. Please do not leave during the class session except for the break or an emergency situation. It is distracting. If on the rare occasion you need to arrive late or leave early, please inform me first so I do not mark you as absent.

2. Critical Memos. For 20% of your final grade and to further facilitate our in-class discussion, students are expected to bring with them to class a hard copy written comment or critique about that day’s readings EVERY WEEK, which will be handed in during class (and a soft copy to Blackboard by 11:59 p.m.). It should be an approximately 1-2 page critical appraisal of some aspect of that day’s readings that grabs your attention. If you miss a week’s memo, you may hand it in at the next session IF YOU ALERT ME IN ADVANCE (SEE LATE POLICY). I WILL NOT ACCEPT THE MEMO IN QUESTION AFTER THAT. YOU MUST DO THEM THROUGHOUT THE SEMESTER.

Each memo will be graded on a 10-point scale and must be a critical analysis of the reading. A mere summary of the material will not earn you a full grade. You must also synthesize and critique the theoretical arguments and/or empirical research. In writing your memos, please keep in mind the following questions:

What main point (s) will you focus your memo around?
What are the theoretical issues that come up in this reading?
What questions do this week’s readings raise?
Do you agree or disagree with particular arguments?
What are the author’s major contributions, major weaknesses?
Can the argument be usefully applied in another context?
How does this piece challenge other readings?
3. Take-home Midterm Exam. I will base 30% of your final grade on a take-home essay midterm exam. The exam will cover the first part of the course. You are responsible for all readings, as well as material covered in lectures and class discussion. Optimal performance on exams will only occur by both attending class and doing the assigned readings. It will consist of essay questions and the answers should be typed and double-spaced. The midterm will be due on October 8th. Please bring a hard copy to class and submit a soft copy to Blackboard by 11:59 p.m. on that day.

4. Term Paper. I will base 30% of your final grade on a 15-20-page paper (typed and doubled spaced) discussing a specific topic in the sociology/anthropology of gender. You will need to make an appointment to discuss your paper topic with me by Sept. 17th. A two-page abstract, outline and references for your paper are due Oct. 29th. Failure to turn in the abstract/outline will result in a deduction on your final paper. The final paper is due Tuesday Dec. 17th to Blackboard by 11:59 p.m. More details will be given in a handout as the semester progresses.

5. Policy on late assignments. Late assignments will not be accepted without penalty unless there is an emergency situation and you contact me WITHIN 48 HOURS OF THE DUE DATE or in a non-emergency situations, you contact me AT LEAST 24 HOURS PRIOR TO THE DUE DATE to ask for an extension. For memos, that means it will be due the following week and after that I will not accept late memos. Otherwise, late assignments will be penalized ONE LETTER GRADE for each day that it is late.

6. Appearance of written work. All written work must be typed, double-spaced, with 1 inch margin and a font between 10-12 pt. Please keep a copy of all written work when turning in assignments to insure that you get credit for your work.

7. Students with disabilities. Students with documented disabilities that require modified instructional procedures should notify me within the first week of classes. Please bring a note from Student Disability Services, Office of Student Support specifying any special needs you may have.

8. Cheating and plagiarism. Any information, arguments, or data used by students in their work (critical memos, take home midterm exam, final paper) should be properly cited and credited with IN-TEXT CITATIONS AND A BIBLIOGRAPHY. This includes paraphrased information and direct quotations used in your papers. Should you fail to give proper credits wherever appropriate (this includes directly pasting material from the World Wide Web into your paper without giving proper credit), copying papers from friends, I will give you an F (0%) on the paper in question. I also reserve the right to fail you for the course and to turn your name over to the university’s Academic Integrity Committee for further disciplinary measures. For more information see http://www.aucegypt.edu/academics/integrity/Pages/default.aspx.

9. Food and drink in the classroom. Soft drinks and snacks are permitted as long as they do not cause class disruption or result in littering. In other words, no chips or other noise-making food are allowed; clean-up afterwards is expected. Needless to say, classrooms are held in smoke-free environment.

10. Mobile phones and other disruptive equipment. Please turn off all mobile phones or any other potentially disruptive equipment. Please do not make or receive phone calls unless there is an emergency situation and please leave the classroom to do so.
11. Academic freedom and intellectual interaction. In this course we will deal with a number of topics that are often controversial. You are free to offer the class any disagreement you may have with the readings or lecture. You will NOT be penalized for disagreeing with other students or the instructor, but your perspective must be based on evidence from course or other readings. Freedom of speech and ideas is a basic principle of academic life (and of universal human rights). Please listen carefully to your classmates and respect other viewpoints. Every student will have a chance to express her/his opinion as long as it is voiced in a respectful manner. Intellectual interaction and a healthy academic environment necessitate that we address and refer to each other with utmost politeness, cordiality, and an appropriate tone of speech. In addition, varied points of view must be expressed in a manner that is sensitive to differences in ability, class, ethnicity, lifestyle, race, religion, or sex, and should not be expressed so as to be perceived as a personal attack. Thus, engaging in derogatory statements, hate speech, interruptions, heckling, or in belittling ideas with which one disagrees will not be tolerated. In short, respect for others’ differences is the one of the most important prerequisites for enrollment in this course.
